Reflection on today's Gospel: Mark 1: 1-8

A voice cries in the wilderness: prepare a way for the Lord.

Today's Gospel presents us with John the Baptist, who cuts a powerful, unorthodox figure dressed in camel-skin and living on locusts and wild honey. Far from the seats of worldly power and influence, John preaches redemption and salvation in the wilderness; everywhere he goes he is followed by crowds eager and excited to hear his words.

Redemption and salvation: two powerful concepts. If we truly repent, we find our minds opening and our hearts becoming tender. We find ourselves turning fully towards God and in so doing, we find that we have recovered our soul's former beauty. We become the humans God intended us to be.

John seeks to prepare the way for the coming of Jesus, and to that end he urges his followers to change their ways: to repent, and by repenting to turn their faces back to God and salvation. His passionate mission is to open their minds and to soften their hearts so that they will be receptive to Jesus' mission of love and healing.

In this season of Advent we are preparing ourselves for Christ's coming. The message of Advent is change, the change which begins with the world within ourselves and results in a new way of being: a beautiful gospel of shared life. We may find ourselves in the wilderness at this present time, but there is hope and joy in that wilderness.
