A short reflection on today's Gospel: *Mark 4:35-41

'Even the wind and the sea obey him'

Today's Gospel challenges our faith at its core. It asks, "Do I really know who Jesus is? Do I really know his power? Do I believe that he is always with me, calm and peaceful in the midst of life's storms, ready to save me?"

Jesus suggests to his disciples that they should take a boat and cross to the other side of the lake. He is tired and falls into a calm and deep sleep, his head resting on a cushion. Without warning, a storm erupts fiercely, so fiercely that his disciples, some of them seasoned fishermen, are terrified, and shout at him to wake up and save them. Jesus stands up in the boat calmly, subdues the storm, and then rebukes his disciples for the lack of faith which their terror has clearly manifested. They have witnessed his miracles; they acknowledge him as their Master, their Teacher, and yet they fail to realise that there is no need for fear when they are in the presence of the Son of God. They still do not know Jesus.

Jesus, may we always remember, in the midst of life's storms and terrors, that you are never absent from our lives: you are walking with us, day and night, in storm and in calm. May our sleep be calm and peaceful because our trust in you is absolute.

Jesus, may we always remember that the greater our faith in you is, the greater will be our peace and serenity of soul and spirit.

Jesus, you crossed over to the other side many times in your ministry of healing. You crossed over to the other side when you reached out to the poor and the marginalised, the outcasts and the despised. May we too cross over to the other side in our need to separate from the materialism, consumerism and power-hunger of the world, to walk with you, Jesus, in peace, in love and in humility. Amen
